If you got kids under seven this is for them. Just a hyped up bad movie.

The snowman is the only thing worth watching in this entire cartoon.

It should have been called Snowman.

The singing and the songs was unoriginal and not even memorable.

This movie followed the same run of the mill - cookie cutter plot that Disney is known for.

Your kids, if you even have any, would really like this more for the usual stuff we see in a film like this.

For adults the quality of animation was top notch and pretty to look at but then you get highly annoyed by the story.

Even if your a regular cartoon fan skip this hype and watch something else.

Good, but not overly funny

Frozen is a very good, and well made movie. the story is good and the animatioin is stunning. However it was much more of a musical than I expected it to be, and while humorous it wasn't really funny. I chuckled a few times but that was about it. Just too much singing for my taste.

Another Disney hit

My wife and I previewed this for our little kids, and found that it's a little old for them, they are 2 & 3 years old, but it was a lot of fun, a lot of singing, and the animation was great. Similar animal characters to Brave, as a new take on the true love conquers all theme. We both like it, and will look forward to showing it to the kids in a couple years.

Ignore the trailer, this is a great movie!

Great movie - I missed it in the theater due to the terrible trailer starring Olaf and Sven. Though they are fun characters the fact that the trailer was of a snowman and reindeer tussling over a carrot on a frozen lake made me have zero interest in watching the movie. It wasn't until I started reading about how the song, "Let It Go", caused the filmmakers to rewrite the screenplay that I took interest.

This is a very good Disney movie - atypical in its choice of having two protagonists. It broke from the very stale mold that seems to be the Disney staple of portraying the world as black and white. I am sure that my daughter will love the movie once she is old enough to watch it with me, she already seems to enjoy the song.

Overhyped and Not on Par with other Animated Classics

Finally got around to watching this and honestly I don't know what all the hype is about. First of all, as a musical, the songs are a bit corny and forced. Every time the music would kick in my girlfriend and I rolled our eyes at each other. Nothing like the days of Aladdin or Little Mermaid. The story seemed really predicable and the "plot twists" also seemed forced and more like bad writing. Not by any means a classic in my opinion. Not hating on it, but I just expected more after all the hype. Didn't stand up to other Disney classics in my opinion or to other animated favorites like Shrek. The snow man (forget his name now - comic relief character) and the visuals of the animations were the only highlights of the film for me.
